ALLIES UNFLINCHING IN FEARFUL CARNAGE

Kitchener's Statement of Correspondent, Studying "Disconnected Scraps of Human Agony." Concludes That Franco-British-Belgian Line, Though Forced Back, Does Not Face Hopeless Task.

[By Cable to The Tribune.]

London, Aug. 31.—The Amiens correspondent of "The Daily Chronele" telegraphs

Looking back on all I have seen during the last few days, I find it difficult to piece together the various incidents and impressions and to Wounded Soldiers Say Kaiser make one picture of all. It seems to me now like a jigsaw puzzle of suffering and fear and courage-a litter of odd, disconnected scraps of human agony, and of some big, grim scheme which, if one could get the clow, would give a meaning. I suppose, to all these tears of women and London, Aug. 30. retreat from great disaster. But more pitiful even than this were the scenes which followed. As I turned back into the town I saw thousands of boys who had been called to the colors and had been brought up from the country to be sent forward to the second lines of the 1914 class, and many of them were shouting and singing, though here and there a white-faced boy tried to hide his tears as women from the crowdran forward to embrace him. These lads were keeping up their valor by noisy demonstrations, but I have seen the death carts pass, and I could not bear to look into the reconstructions.

Which do you want?

Arbitrary or optional-

Arbitrary space in a building is that which requires you to take 2,000 feet where you want

Optional space is that which you are offered in the Equitable Building, for example, which is so elastic in its distribution, and so adaptable to the exact requirements of your business, that you can lease exactly what you want and are under no compulsion to take more.

The choice rests with you.

Leases now being made from May 1, 1915. The building, how-ever, is due to be completed 2 or 3 months ahead of that date.

"These are notable examples of what has taken place over practically the whole front during these engagements. The Germans have been made to pay the extreme price for every forward march they have made. Since the 26th, apart from cavalry fighting, the British army has not been molested. It rested and refitted after its exertions and glorious achievements. Reinforcements amounting to double the loss sustained have already joined; every gun has been replaced and the army is now ready to take part in the next great encounter with undiminished strength and
